

LOOKING FOR A PLACE TO LIGHT

REPUBLICAN ORGAN SYMPATHETIC IN ITS FEELING TO WARD CITIZEN'S TICKET—TO FORSAKE G. O. P. TO TAKE UP SUGGESTION OF PROGRESSIVES.

FEELING NOT UNANIMOUS

Is the Republican party in Greencastle slipping? Those who have been watching the political situation have about decided that it is. Even the local Republican press in its issue of Friday, shows signs of deserting the party for which it has so long stood.

But there is no doubt but that the editor of the paper is showing signs of weakening. For in Friday's edition he speaks most sympathetically in favor of the Bull Moose proposition of a fusion of the Republicans and the Progressives in placing a Citizens ticket in the field for the city election.

Last fall the Republican paper of the city stood pat for the G. O. P. There was no sign of Bull Moose sympathy then. But things have changed. Perhaps the editor is a little fearful that the Republican party is doomed and that the thing to do is to "fuse."

But regardless of the attitude of the Republican press there are many Republicans in Greencastle who declare they will stand by the old party or nothing at all. Many of the Bull Mooseers, too, declare that they will not sacrifice the future of their party by consenting to join with the party which last year was not good enough for them, in the support of a mixed ticket.

The paper favors a conference of the Republicans and Bull Mooseers to discuss a Citizens' ticket. Surely something is wrong. Surely something has slipped. Indications are that its policy will be anything to defeat the Democrats, rather than to stand for the principles of any one party.

University Notice.

The matriculation of DePauw university students will commence Tuesday morning at 8:30 o'clock. All committees will be present and professors will be in their rooms. All students are urged to matriculate as promptly as possible. The first chapel will be held Wednesday morning.

H. A. Gobin, Vice President.

F. L. Williams, of Jefferson City, Mo., and Robert H. Williams, of Crawfordsville, were here today on their way to the home of their parents near Pinecastle where they will visit for several days. Incidentally they will attend the Grider School reunion to be held at Pinecastle tomorrow. Both are DePauw university graduates. F. L. Williams, after completing his study of law went to Joplin, Mo., where he established a fine practice. Complaints are being made that Marshal Lemuel Johns, is not killing the dogs, which he shoots because they are not muzzled. R. P. Houck stated this morning that a dog he belonged to Jesse Tobin, in south Greencastle, which was shot by the marshal several days ago, was not killed but only badly injured by the marshal, and that it crawled under the porch of the Houck home, where it has suffered for several days.

WANTS EXHIBITS OF EVERY COUNTY

PROF. CHRISTIE OF PURDUE STARTS AGITATION FOR BETTER STATE FAIR—CO-OPERATION BETWEEN FARMERS, HE SAYS, IS ONE OF THE MOST DESIRABLE THINGS FOR THE STATE.

WOULD ADVERTISE INDIANA

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 13.—"Advertise Indiana" is a point which should be more fully emphasized at the Indiana State Fair, declared Professor G. I. Christie, of Purdue University, before the ways and means committee of the Chamber of Commerce, speaking on "The Relation of the Business Man to the Farmer."

"Today there is only one county which has an exhibition at the State Fair," said Professor Christie, "I am working to that end, and hope to see the time when there shall be an agricultural building at the state fair ground, to which every year each county in the state will send an industrial and agricultural exhibition."

The prosperity of the business life of the cities of the state was dependent on the prosperity of the farm, said Professor Christie. He declared that it was dependent on the great "created wealth" of the farm.

Interested in Farmer.

"The business man," he said, "is interested in the farmer for two reasons; because the farm is the great source of the state's food supply and because of the great money returns of which the farm and farmer is the basis."

The farmer, he said, was an individualist. He lacked the co-operation which the business interests of the cities were able to turn in their relations with each other. The Chamber of Commerce in Indianapolis and other cities, by the establishment of county agricultural agents which has now been done in many of the counties, he said, could be of great service in bringing the farmer and the business together.

They could also help, he said, in stopping the "shifting population" of the rural districts, many farmers leaving the state and moving to others where the advantages had been demonstrated to them, and leaving the land behind them in the hands of the younger and uneducated farmer.

Necessity of Education.

Professor Christie pointed out that the farmer must be educated in better management of his farm, and made to see that all the advantages of the city life might be transferred to the county, and that his children might receive the same education there as in the city. Not only the increase of his wealth but the betterment of his social conditions were within the range of the assistance which the Chamber of Commerce could render to the producer of the state's wealth.

Professor Christie said agriculture was formerly the predominant interest of the state, but that the great class of manufacturing interests had been developed in late years. The value of the corn crop this year, he said, would be about $90,000,000. Sixty per cent. of the deposits in the outlying banks came from the farm. The city banks had found that a large per cent. of their reserve came from the outlying banks.

MARRIAGE LICENSE.

Arthur Carey Pittenger, Boston, Mass., and Hallie Landes, Greencastle.

J. L. Bridges, of Pinecastle, is in the city on business today.

MARRIAGE OF MISS HALLIE LANDES AND ARTHUR C. PITTINGER

The marriage of Miss Hallie Landes, daughter of Mrs. Lillie Landes, and Arthur Carey Pittenger, of Boston, Mass., will be solemnized this evening at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother on Taylor avenue. Dr. H. B. Gough will officiate. The young couple will make their home in Boston, where Mr. Pittenger is engaged in settlement work.

Tapestries and Wood Carving.

Mrs. Blanche Goodwine O'Hair of Greencastle, had a beautiful display of tapestries and wood carving at the state fair. The carved pieces were a desk in oak, with decoration or conventional wild roses; a walnut hall chair in naturalistic wild roses; a mahogany picture frame in fleur-de-lis; a piano bench of black walnut in conventional wild roses. The most elaborate piece was a large three-paneled screen of black walnut, the frame carved in thistles and leaves and the panels painted in black.

The tapestries are quite large, two figure pieces and one landscape. Blue ribbons were placed on both collections. Mrs. O'Hair was a student of DePauw school of art for several years and studied china painting at the Convent of the Sacred Heart at Tampa, Fla.—Indianapolis News.

HUSBAND WANTS $25,000 DAMAGES

J. G. SINCLAIR OF CLOVERDALE FILES SUIT AGAINST TRACTION COMPANY ALLEGING THAT HIS WIFE WAS PERMANENTLY INJURED IN WRECK. Following a damage suit in which Mrs. Mary V. Sinclair of Cloverdale, asks damages of the T. H. & East, she received in the traction wreck at Torr's switch west of town last year, her husband J. G. Sinclair has filed suit in the Putnam Circuit asking $25,000 damages of the traction company and General Railway Signal Co., alleging that injuries to his wife in the wreck has caused him to be deprived of her services, companionship and society.

COMPLAINT FILED TO-DAY

The complaint, which was filed by Hays & Murphy and Lyon & Peck, attorneys, this morning, alleges that the wreck on the traction line was caused by the negligence of an employee of the General Railway Signal Co., which company was doing some work for the traction company. It further alleges that his wife was permanently injured in the wreck her head, body and limbs being mangled, bruised and broken. He further alleges that her injuries are permanent. Mrs. Sinclair, through her attorneys, recently filed suit for damages against the two companies.

AMUSEMENTS

It is with pleasure to know that we are to have a good show at the Airdome next week, Lee Moses and his excellent company of players will be here and open with the great domestic comedy drama, "The Tie That Binds." Next Monday night specialties of a superior class will be given during the action of the play. During the week a number of surprises will be in evidence and a fine line of plays will run. The company is now playing a successful engagement at Elwood. The management has decided to make the price of admission at 10 cents with a few choice seats at 20 cents. These prices alone should serve to pack the dome each night. The Empire Dramatic Co. will no doubt fulfill every promise made and our theatregoers should be on hand in great numbers Monday night. Remember the opening play "The Tie That Binds."

Every school child in the state will now have an opportunity to learn a trade in school and fit himself or herself for the future, thanks to the wise legislation enacted by the democratic progressives, as far as city tickets are concerned. True, they have more tickets in the field, but they will not elect more officers than the progressives, and that is a very discouraging prospect for both parties.

"JUST A LOT OF WATER."

Boy Would Not Advise Taking Trouble to See Niagara.

You think that perhaps so much talking about Niagara has kind of dulled the edge of your appreciation of it. I don't believe it. The first man that saw it probably said: "What's that?" and didn't stare at it very long. Nothing to eat there, and it looked spooky, and anyhow standing where it was so damp would probably give him rheumatism. It tells in the guide-book how a man in the early days went to see the place, but it was a very cold night, and the tavern was comfortable, so he sent a boy to see if it was worth while. The boy came back and said it wasn't much; just a lot of water falling, and it was colder than all get-out, and he wouldn't advise it—Eugene Wood, in McClure's Magazine.

Cruel Woman!

The tramp narrated to fellow wanderer the story of an intensely tragic occurrence. "Yus," he said, "there was a beautiful lawn in front of the ouse, nicely kept, and it looked a real good chance for gettin' a bit of honest sympathy. So I walks in, gets down on me 'ands and knees, and starts chewin' the grass. Out comes a kindly-looking lady as I ever seed, and wanted to know wot I was doin'. Told her I 'adn't 'ad grub fer weeks, and was obliged to eat grass. She looked very sympathetically at me, and then said: 'My pore man. Come around behind the house. The grass is longer there!'"

An Impossible Combination.

They were talking of the strange sights to be seen in a great city, and one man paid his tribute to New York "I don't believe one of you could think of any combination of circumstances that hasn't at some time occurred on the streets there," he said. "I reckon I know of one that's never occurred there," said Hiram Fowle. "What's that?" asked the other, curiously. "I guess," said Hiram, slowly, "that you've never seen, nor ever will see, a brass band going in one direction an' the heft of the folks going the other."

The Mind's Power.

"Zola," said a psychologist, "once wrote in a lady's album that his favorite amusement was writing and his favorite wish a sudden death. Zola died suddenly."

"And it is a strange thing," said the psychologist, "that those who prefer a sudden death usually have their preference gratified. It is one of those things which go to show the mind's mysterious power. Who knows but it is this very desire for death, quick, painless, undreaded, which actually causes that happy kind of death? The mind, you know, has a power that we have only just begun to understand."

The Way of the Reformer.

Every new truth which affects life must pass through a period in which it is hated before it attains the period in which it is loved. What people dread is change; what they wish is to be let alone. They will kill the reformer, if they can, and only those reformers who refuse to be killed, but who for years together go on savagely, patiently, tenderly reiterating the same message, in the end have their way, and are believed.—Rev. Elwood Worcester's "The Emmanuel Movement" in the Century.

Why Pity the Farmer?

Mr. Mann of Geuda Springs loaded a large, fat hog into his automobile and took it to market in Arkansas City, where he got a good price for the porker. It took him a mighty short time to get the hog to town and get the cash for it. A few minutes' scrubbing fixed the auto so that it did not smell like a barnyard, and the hog probably enjoyed the ride. What's the use holding meetings trying to improve conditions of farm life?—Witchite (Kan.) Eagle.

Jamaican Women Want Ballot.

The latest part of the world to be reported as making a commotion in favor of giving women the ballot is the British West Indies. In Jamaica the other day the legislature killed the bill enabling women to vote by the slenderest of margins. Instead of being discouraged, the women of Jamaica declare their willingness to fight a hundred years or longer for their rights.

Just Like Father's.

The other day I took my young nephew to the barber for the first time. I hated to see the soft little curls cut off, but his mother decided they must go. As the barber tied the towel under his baby chin he remarked: "How do you want your hair cut, young man?" "Wif a little round hoie in the top, like my father's."

The Only Way to Know.

Good to Remember.

Physical defects can be turned into incentives to success instead of drawbacks, what we look upon as handicaps in the end may prove spurs to enable us to reach the goal of desire, if we know but how to use them. We make our own happiness, we carve our own success.

When the Pope Wore a Beard.

Pope Julius II, who died in 1513, was the first pope to allow his beard to grow in order, it was said, to inspire greater respect among the faithful. He was called the military pope. When Michael Angelo was making his statue he said to his father, shall I place a book in your hand? "No," answered the Holiness, "a sword rather—I know better how to handle it."

RUSSIAN'S ODD WAGER.

The Eight Different Methods of Locomotion by Which He Won.

A man named Duhoroff has just won a highly original wager at Kiev, Russia. He had undertaken to appear daily during eight days in the streets employing each time a different mode of locomotion.

He commenced by running down the steps of his dwelling and along the boulevard on his hands. The following day he hopped through the town on one leg.

Sitting a skipping rope, roller skates and a bath chair all followed in turn. One day he was conducted through the principal thoroughfares by a small boy who led him on a string.

The finest of his exploits was undoubtedly yesterday's performance when, turning successive somersaults in the air for nearly a mile, he arrived amidst enthusiastic cheers at the cafe where his friends were waiting to bestow the prize upon him.

Women in Japan.

Japan contorts some western ideas as to woman's sphere, for in the province of Shima, on the south coast of the island empire, women are the sterner sex, and not only do most of the field work but are also employed as divers. Stripped to the waist, they enter the water at all seasons except during the coldest months of the winter, remaining under water sometimes for over a minute, and fish up shellfish and tengusa (a kind of seaweed), which they place in a small net carried by each diver at the girdle. These female divers are extremely hardy. The life is, however, a trying one, and the constant exposure causes those engaged in it to become very coarse in appearance and to age quickly.

A Fruitful Potato Plant.

Not satisfied with yielding an enormous output in the regular way, an Irish potato vine growing in the garden of C. C. Nall at Luthersville, Ga., some time ago began to put out potatoes all along its branches, and, when sent to the "Constitution" office yesterday, had potatoes as large as eggs growing practically all over the vine.

In a letter accompanying the freak, Mr. Nall states that the vine grew in his garden, where the land is a mixture of sand and red clay. On taking up the plant, he found that the industrious vine had not neglected its regular duty while pulling off its unusual stunt, as proven by the fact that an unusually large number of potatoes were found in their accustomed place in the ground.—Atlanta Constitution.

Pure Water vs. Typhoid.

Prof. Geo. M. Kober recently collected statistics showing that the substitution of a pure for a contaminated water-supply in American cities has been accompanied by a decrease of deaths from typhoid amounting to more than seventy per cent. Before the change the deaths numbered, on the average, 694 per 100,000; since, they have fallen to 19.8. A bulletin of the New York State Department of Health in 1908 showed, in ten cities, a reduction of over fifty-three per cent. in the typhoid death-rate after the introduction of a pure water-supply.—Youth's Companion.

A Lesson for Older Folk.

Some one told my little child there were bears up-stairs in the dark, so she refused to go alone to bed. I told her there were no bears, and anyhow God is love, and if she would always say that to herself nothing would harm her. At last she was persuaded to go alone. As it got darker toward the top of the stairs I heard her saying aloud over and over: "God is love—they isn't no bears. God is love—they isn't no bears."

A Hopeful Soul.

"Hope springs eternal," says the poet. The Chicago News gives a striking illustration of the truth of his words.

Woman is naturally more hopeful than man.

Yes, there's my wife, for instance; for years past every time she had occasion to buy fish she has asked the dealer if they were fresh, hoping, I suppose, that some day he'll say no.

A Roman Lady's Oyster Feat.

In the palace of the Caesars in Pompeii are still seen vomitoria, where ancient Romans, when filled to surfeit, would tickle their throats with finger or feather and so eat ten or twelve times daily. A Roman grande dame at one sitting thus enjoyed 2,000 British oysters. Cicero showed appreciation for Cato by making six such returns at one session.

Overcoming a Nuisance.

"The only way to stop people from plastering a stamp at any old place upon the envelope, except the right one, is to do as is done in England. There a letter which does not have the stamp in the right position is cast aside and handled only when all other mail is sorted and exchanged." This idea was advanced by a postal clerk. "We often lose considerable time because of these letters," continued the clerk, "for often we have to stop and turn over the envelope to find the stamp. The worse offenders in this respect are not foreigners, but those who have lived here for years."

When the Pope Wore a Beard.

TEA FROM THE FLOWERS.

Naturally Sweet Tea of Western China—Value of Tea Dust.

Tea, not from the leaves, but from the flowers alone of the plant, is rarely encountered in commerce. The petals, stamens, &c., are sun dried, and the resulting tea is of a rich, deep brown hue peculiarly delicate odor, and gives a pale amber colored infusion rather more astringent in taste than that from the average fair grade leaf. The taste for it is an acquired one, and even if this tea could be made commercially possible, it is doubtful if it would ever become popular.

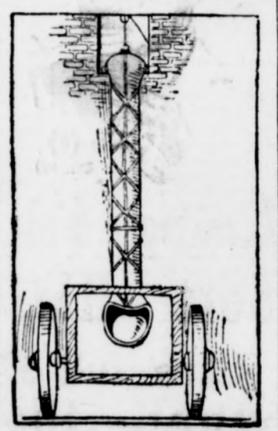

The American tea trade could advantageously take a suggestion from the brick tea of the Far East. In our country, the tea dust, some of which is of good quality, is not properly utilized. In Europe it is a regular article of trade, and it is advertised and sold as tea dust. In America it is sold to thousands of cheap restaurants, who make from it the mixture of tannic acid, sugar and boiled milk which they sell as "tea." If, as in the Orient, this dust were compressed into bricks, good tea could be made from it, and the product would find a ready market through the multitude of uses for which it is adapted. A beginning in this direction has been made by the Pinehurst tea estate in South Carolina, and in Europe similar advances have been inaugurated.

The virgin tea (biepoki-chi), so called from its use at Chinese weddings, is the sun dried leaf intact, tied up with these strands of colored silk. After infusion, these fagottlike little bundles are pickled in vinegar and used as salad. This tea is sold in especially handsome silk covered and glass topped boxes. The rarest of all teas, and one that has never been known to reach this country, is a natural sweet tea, produced in western China on a very limited scale. Its culture is centuries old, and the secret has been jealously guarded from generation to generation. The saccharinity is probably due to grafting and years of patient study and care, such as only the small Chinese tea farmer is capable of bestowing.—Scientific American.

Portable Chute.

Improved methods of saving time and labor in loading and delivering merchandise are continually being devised. The old-fashioned method of swinging boxes, etc., out of the upper stories of warehouses on ropes and tackle is being discarded and loading chutes substituted. One of the most useful loading chutes now in use is shown here. It is so constructed that it can be used for delivering packages from various heights and then folded and stored away in an ordinary delivery wagon or truck under the driver's seat. The chute or tube is formed of a flexible fabric and reinforced by an open mesh of rope. At each end is a metallic band. The chute is constructed of a number of settings, connected by joining devices, so that it can be used on buildings of varying heights. One end of the chute is fastened to an upper story of the warehouse from which the goods are delivered and the lower end attached to the framework of the truck. Though primarily intended for delivering and loading parcels and packages, such as sacks of flour, grain, &c., in case of emergency it can be employed as a fire-escape.

FISH IN ENCLOSED WATERS.

Wild Duck Stocked Fresh Pool with Finny Genizens.

Many people, not without education and a general knowledge of natural history, are mystified by the presence of fish in enclosed waters. For many years there was open-mouthed wonder over the perch, bream, and crayfish found in the newly cut dams near the Marguarie river in New South Wales. In some cases the water had scarcely settled after the rain had filled the dam than the fish were observed, and the Australian farmers started a theory of spontaneous production. This obtained, and gained wide credence, until a Sydney professor chanced to pick up a wild duck and found its breast feathers and webbed feet well dotted with fertile and almost hatched fishova, on which the "spontaneous production" theory was promptly withdrawn.

Deserved a Threshing.

The mother of the twins found them fighting furiously. Willie, the larger twin, was on top. He was beating Tommy about the face and head.

"Why, William, how dare you strike your brother like that!" cried the mother, taking the boy by the ear and pulling him off.

"I had good cause to strike him," answered Willie.

"What do you mean?" she asked. "Why," said Willie with a righteous air, "didn't I let him use my sled all last Saturday on condition that he'd say my prayers for me all this week? And here I've just found out that he's skipped three days."—The Housekeeper.

Sugar in the French Army.

In the French Journal of Military Medicine and Pharmacy reference is made to the fact that during some military manoeuvres for three weeks the soldiers were given from 60 to 165 grams of sugar, replacing one-half of the meat ration of two companies of French soldiers. The sugar was taken readily in wine, water or coffee and no digestive disturbances were noted. Five soldiers for three days took a larger amount of sugar, viz., 300 grams, in place of the entire meat ration. The author's opinion was to the effect that the men were in better physical condition and had more endurance than on their ordinary ration, all of which coincides with very many other similar observations.

Odd Bits of Fact.

Power of Public Opinion.

The internal waterways are like everything else in this country. If the people realize their importance and the impulsive and vast importance they will be to the national commerce and make up their minds they must have waterways, they will get them. There is practically nothing which cannot be done by the force of public opinion. All other forces and factors find themselves obliged to yield to its power.—Baltimore American.

"I Told You So."

An old couple lived in the mountains of Eastern Tennessee; he was ninety-five and she ninety. Their son, a man of seventy, died. As the old folks crossed the pasture to their cabin after the burial, the woman noticed a tear roll down her husband's cheek. She patted him tenderly on the arm and said:

"Never mind, John, never mind; you know I always said we never would raise that boy."—Success Magazine.

Anything But That.

Little John is the youngest of a family of five boys. One day his mother said to him, "O, John, isn't it too bad I haven't one little girl? I could curl her hair and make such pretty little dresses for her. Don't you wish you were a little girl?" John grunted disgustedly. "Why, mother," he said, "I'd rather be most any other kind of an animal you could mention than a girl!"

The Revolver Habit.

Will the time ever come when the revolver will have had its day in America and be relegated with the sword, the dagger and the bludgeon? The revolver argument settles nothing but the contestants. It is a perpetual non sequitur, as childish as it is frightful, and as frightful as it is childish.—Minneapolis Journal.

The Right Definition for "Weird."

Little Frances, aged four, was being put to bed alone for the first time. "Mother," she said, "I do not like this room, it is so weird-to-king." "What does 'weird' mean, dear?" asked her mother. "Why," she replied, "weird is long and dark and no-father-and-motherish looking."

DO YOU TAKE THE HERALD?

DISINFECTANTS, NO ODOR.

Such is the Aim of the Leaders in Germicidal Materials.

Disinfecting has now developed, according to leading dealers in germ killing materials, into a question of producing an article which will kill odors and germs without the disagreeable odor so common to disinfectants.

It is now possible to obtain preparations containing formaldehyde in which the irritating effects of the gas are eliminated. The only objection, therefore, to the universal use of formaldehyde is force. Formaldehyde in a dilution of 1 to 10,000 killed anthrax bacilli in 30 minutes and the cholera spirillum in two hours. Formaldehyde in a dilution of 1 to 15,000 inhibits the growth of typhoid bacilli and in a dilution of 1 to 20,000 inhibits the growth of glanders bacilli and the spirillum of cholera.—New York Sun.

Poetic Justice.

A man whose soul has been tortured frequently by the remarks of his wife, who takes a fiendish delight in setting a price on the handsome clothes worn by other women, one day found sweet comfort in the incautious comment of a woman in a crowded car.

"Oh! yes," said the observing other woman, "the hat looks well enough, but it is cheap. It couldn't have cost a cent more than $6."

Thereupon said the man to his wife:

"Why do you always pick out the most expensive clothes for special notice? Why don't you look at something cheap once in a while? There are cheap things worn. There is a hat in this very car that cost only $6. The woman just behind us pointed it out a minute ago."

"Well," said his wife, "you are the last person on earth who ought to feel proud of it. It was me she was talking about."—New York Times.

Through with Chance.

They were seated on separate chairs, the young woman cheerful and smiling, the young man distraught and apparently struggling under some bitter disappointment—some "well-nigh crushing blow from the pile-driver of Fate.

"So you care nothing for me and positively decline my offer, eh?" he hoarsely demanded, bending forward and staring moodily at the floor.

"Yes," was the frigid reply. "I am sorry for you, but you have utterly misconstrued my feelings. I can never be your wife."

"Stung again!" bitterly remarked the young man as soon as he could command his voice. "I was just foolish enough to bet Hank Perkins a week's salary that you would accept me, but I've got the throw-down, as usual, and am out fifteen plunks in the bargain."—New York Times.

Where the Corn Goes.

People often wonder, particularly those who have travelled for hundreds of miles through the corn belt, what becomes of the corn which is grown every year. In the year 1908, when the total crop was 2,665,000,000 bushels, 241,000,000 bushels were consumed in flour and grist mill products, 8,000,000 bushels in the manufacture of starch, 9,000,000 bushels for malt liquors, 17,000,000 bushels in the production of distilled liquors, 40,000,000 bushels for export and 13,000,000 bushels for seed, making a total of 518,000,000 bushels, or 19.3 per cent. of the entire crop. The remaining 80.7 per cent., or 2,118,000,000 bushels, seems to have been used almost entirely for feeding.

Unbleached Muslin.

The possibilities of unbleached muslin are not appreciated. This cheap material is of a mellow, creamy tone which lends itself peculiarly to artistic decoration. For summer cottage hangings it is a most desirable material, the unevenness of weave suggesting certain silken fabrics. A prettily bed room in a summer cottage had the walls papered with delicate pink and yellow roses upon a creamy ground, while all the hangings—the window curtains, the door curtains, the bedspread, the couch and chair covers and cushions—were all of unbleached muslin finished with bands of cretonne to match the wall paper. The room was charming.

The Difference.

An opera singer, having snubbed another of her kind, was approached by a reporter in quest of information. "Will you deign to tell me," said the reporter, bowing low, "why a songbird invariably has a nasty temper, ruffling her feathers and pecking at the rest of the flock?"

"Your question," responded the opera singer, "arises from the ignorance of the lally, who are unable to distinguish between the temper of a virago and the temperament of an artiste."

Girl Has Remarkable Voice.

A 16-year-old girl who sings bass was heard in a London hall the other day. Until a year ago she had the usual soprano voice of a girl of her size; then the voice grew deeper and deeper, and to-day it is as low as a man's. A specialist who examined her throat found the vocal chords to be singularly large and broad.

TRUCK FOR THE AUTOMOBILE.

manner and easily regulated to accommodate vehicles of varying widths.

The tracks are supported upon front and rear wheels, the front wheels of the tracks being raised considerably above the ground, forming an inclined plane. At one side of the track is a hoisting apparatus by which can be hauled upon the tracks and thus secured in position. All parts of an automobile upon this truck are readily accessible for repairing and overhauling, as the open space between the tracks affords ample room for the machinist to move freely.

Sponges up to Sixty Dollars

Sponges are supposed to be out of fashion among women, particularly since the microbe scare came into being. But such is not the case. Women still use them for the bath, and, moreover, they pay anywhere from 50 cents up to $60 a sponge.

According to a man who deals in them the sale has increased rather than diminished.

More care, however, is exercised in their selection than formerly for women do not want to run the risk of buying a cheap article or of getting hold of what are called "hospital" sponges—those discarded from the various hospitals of the city, which are taken and cleansed and resold by unscrupulous dealers.

"A reliable druggist imports his sponges direct from Europe," said a dealer, "the best coming from Turkey and being called Turkey cup sponges from the shape.

"These are round, or nearly so, much more uniform in size than any others, and of the finest quality and texture. They get their name from the round cup shaped opening in one side of the sponge.

"They are found in deep, quiet pools of water off the coast of Turkey, and the quality results from the fact that they grow outside of any current. Mediterranean sponges come next in order.

"They are coarse grained and full of holes by reason of the swift currents which affect their shape and quality. A few sponges are grown off the coast of Florida, but owing to the Gulf Stream, which is particularly swift at this point, they are of very little value commercially. A good Mediterranean sponge retails for about $3 or $4."

Increase in Rice Lands.

Horace Greely to-day might be tempted to amend his advice and suggest to the young man to go South, says Country Life in America. According to the government reports, the rice industry has increased marvellously since 1889.

The number of rice mills has increased 264 per cent.; of capital $62 per cent., and value of products 178 per cent. Land on the Gulf coast of Texas and Louisiana, which fifteen years ago sold for $1.50 an acre and was sometimes held at 25 cents, to-day is worth $12.50, some lands being worth $30 or $50 an acre.

The use of machinery adapted to rice production, the perfection of irrigation, the study and application of the Japanese methods of rice growing and the use of the Japanese rice have made rice growing an exceedingly profitable undertaking, and one that will undoubtedly be increasingly lucrative with the rapidly growing population.

Quality of Horsehair.

The raw horsehair used in the manufacture of haircloth for upholstery purposes is just now high priced in this country because of the situation which during and since the Russo-Japanese war has prevailed in Russia, whence most of the hair comes. The best of such cloth must have a certain width of weave, which depends upon the length of the hairs, and in this respect the Russian horses are superior, having tails which sweep the ground. Much of the weaving is done in this country. For the narrower weaves of the cloth, used by tailors in lining coats, the hair from American horses on the Western plains is used.

Short Sermons For a Sunday Half-Hour

"THE TWO VOICES."

By Rev. Howard Arnold Walter.

This is a sermon without a specific text, for the theme is "Temptation" and the texts are innumerable, ranging all the way from the Garden of Eden to the Isle called Patmos, from Alpha to Omega of human history and experience. From the dawn of the first conscious sin in childhood to the sundown of life two voices are sounding incessantly in the ear of every individual, the voice of Satan summoning men upward to righteousness. The better we become the firmer grow our temptations, for the higher we are lifted the stronger does the force of moral gravitation become. It is no temptation for the drunkard to take another drink as it is for the man who is fighting free of his passion for alcohol. When we think of the white purity of Jesus' life making its way through the dark and crooked avenues of earth, unstooping and unstained, we are aghast at the force of the temptations that must have beset Him, fierce—as we learn from the account of His early temptations in our gospel—in the spiritual range of His absolute trust in God, His consciousness of Messiahship.

Generally speaking, there are three ranges of a man's life when he is continually engaged in this relentless battle for his soul between the forces of sin and of salvation, namely, the physical, the social and the spiritual. It is curiously suggestive that the earliest temptation mentioned in the Bible, which wrought the downfall of our first parents, should have been concerned with the appetite, which since that day has constituted one of man's chief battle grounds. The sensual and the spiritual are forever antagonistic, and only as the former is disciplined and denied, only as we strive, with Paul, to keep the body under, will our bodies be fit temples for the Holy Ghost to inhabit. Many of the characters in the Bible narrative we know were immersed in this conflict—Noah, David, Daniel, St. Paul and our Lord Himself, hearing on the one hand the voice crying "gratify" and on the other a voice that said "forbear." It was when He was physically exhausted, His bodily strength at lowest ebb, that the devil tempted Jesus to turn a stone into bread and gratify His desire for creature comfort at the expense of His obedience to God. To indulge when we ought to deny our bodily cravings, to overindulge in any sphere, is to infringe the laws of Nature, and that is tantamount to breaking the law of God.

No desire is stronger in the breast of the average man than the yearning for popularity, for the favorable opinions of other men; and hence no summons of God is harder to obey than the command to brave and to condemn the popular will when it is antagonistic to God's will. Trace through history the pathways of the great reformers and you will find them as lonely voices of God crying out for Him in the wilderness of the many voices of men. The multitude which at first shout for the crowning of the prophet, who they hope has come as a deliverer from this world's tyranny, are a unit in shouting for his crucifixion when they discern at last the spiritual import of his message.

What is the message for us who are not prophets or reformers on the mountain peaks of history? It is, "having done all to stand." We too, are reformers in our lesser spheres of life, down in the valley of the commonplace, where we dwell. In our school, in our business, in our club, in our home, we must stand for God and resist the tendency to build loosely on the old and sure foundations. In the physical realm we must obey the voice that bids "forbear," in the social realm the voice "withstand," in the spiritual realm we must obey the voice that bids "believe." The skeptics have always been divided into two schools, represented in Greece by the Epicureans and the Stoics. The former hold that life is short and death its end, hence life must be enjoyed to the full with the jug of wine, the loaf of bread and the woman's song. The latter hold that life is short and death its end, for aught we know, hence we must make the most of the brief time we have for progress, never wincing or crying aloud in "the fell clutch of circumstance." Mathew Arnold, the modern poet of this school, saw men fighting on a confused plain, "where ignorant armies clash by night."

But for us Christ has arisen. Paul, His prophet, tells of another warfare, of light with darkness, of knowledge with ignorance; he saw death "swallowed up in victory," for them who know through faith in Jesus that death is but an incident of the life eternal. Many a man has lost his faith by listening only to the persuasive voice of doubt, not heeding or seeing the full significance of that voice of peerless affirmation, "I am the resurrection and the life."

In our ears to-day, every day, those voices of temptation and of triumph are sounding with ceaseless iteration. We speak of moments that are big with destiny. Every moment of our lives is linked with destiny.

WAGES ON RUSSIAN FARMS.

Agricultural Laborer Receives Only $32 a Year and Subsistence.

The extreme poverty and the low standard of living of peasants from whom the agricultural laborers are recruited assure a low level of wages for agricultural labor. The average wages will appear almost incredibly low from an American point of view, notwithstanding the general complaints of the estate holders concerning the unreasonable demands of the laborers.

According to an official investigation, embracing the decade of 1882-1891, the average annual wages for a male agricultural worker in Russia were less than $22 and for a female worker less than $18. To this must be added the cost of subsistence, which is equally low, being on an average cost of employing a laborer for the entire year is equal to only $5 for the male and $4 for the female.

The wages for the summer season of five months are almost equal to the annual wages, being $22 for the male and $13 for the female laborer.

When Greek Meets Greek.

A young Irishman in want of $25 wrote to his uncle as follows: "Dear Uncle: If you could see how I blush for shame as I am writing you would pity me. Why? Because I have to ask you for a few dollars, and do not know how to express myself. It is impossible for me to tell you. I prefer to die. I send you this by messenger, who will wait for an answer. Believe me, my dearest uncle, your most obedient and affectionate nephew."

"P. S.—Overcome with remorse for what I have written; I have been running after the messenger in order to recover this letter, but I cannot catch him. Heaven grant that something may stop him or that this letter may get lost."

The uncle was naturally touched, but was equal to the emergency. He replied as follows:

"My Dear Jack: Console yourself and blush no more. Providence has heard your prayer. The messenger lost your letter. Your affectionate uncle."

"Rag Sale" in Rome.

On Wednesdays in Rome I like, as do many others, to go to the "rag sale." It is held by the Jews in their particular quarter of the city. These people are not allowed to have shops, but on this one day in the week they are privileged to sell as much and as many kinds of things as they can on the street. It is a curious sight to see lines stretched across the streets for the hanging up of trousers, blankets, women's and children's clothing, and stuff of all sorts. Then there are tables and stands on which almost everything is sold. Sometimes rare old brocades and church embroideries are to be found among coarse and impossible-looking fabrics. Indeed, it is not difficult to reduce one's letter of credit considerably at the "rag sale."—Detroit News-Tribune.

Weighed in Your Own Scales.

If you impute motives, and pretend to read hearts, others will do the same towards you. A hard and censorious behavior is sure to provoke reprisals. Those around you will pick up the peck measure you have been using, and measure your corn with it. You do not object to men forming a fair opinion of your character, neither are you forbidden to do the same towards them, but as you would object to their sitting in judgment upon you, do not sit in judgment upon them.—Spurgeon.

The Weight Man's Woes.

"I wouldn't mind this business," acknowledged the man who guesses the weights of people, "if it wasn't for the automobile coats the women wear to hide their figures—how are you to guess a weight unless you see the figure?"—and if the crowd didn't nearly lie laughing whenever I happen to guess wrong. A lot of them seem to stand around waiting to see me guess wrong, then chortle like fiends."

A Solution.

In one of Boston's primary schools the other day the head master of the district presented a problem for the scholars that would require the use of fractions. He expected the answer "I don't know." The problem: "If I had eight potatoes how could I divide them among nine boys?" One bright-looking youngster raised his hand. "Mash them," promptly replied the young mathematician.

Breton-Gaelic Language.

The Breton language is a branch of the Celtic, which, in turn, includes Gaelic. In its original Celtic form it is still spoken in lower Brittany by more than a million people. There is no record of a single town that you refer to, that is alone in speaking Gaelic and French.

Chauvinism.

Chauvinism is an expression originally used to denote an intense admiration for the first Napoleon and his regime, but latterly employed to mean an absurd patriotism and pride in one's own country. In this last sense it is the French equivalent of jingoism.

It Quieted Mother.

The house was all paid for! Mother was exultant, jubilant, reticent. "Say, mother!" burst out six-year-old Paul eagerly, "print it on your cards, mother, print it on your cards!"

The Trusts' Reverence.

Of one statute all trusts speak with respect, even with reverence. That is the statute of limitations.

Alleging that he done work to the amount of $52.75 for which he has never been paid, John Romine has filed suit to foreclose a mechanics lien on property belonging to Charles A. Heath of this town. The Italian, Tony Lowlen, who was arrested by Marshal Johns Friday afternoon, in an intoxicated condition wandering about on East Liberty street, was turned loose this morning. Walker, the field secretary for the Indiana Christian Epworth Union, has had extensive Christian training and has a convincing personality. He is a forceful speaker and a thoroughly consecrated Christian Endeavorer. Don't fail to hear him Monday evening, Sept. 15th at 7:30 p. m. at the Presbyterian church this morning. The Rev. and Mrs. Demetrius Tillotson, who accompanied Governor and Mrs. Samuel Ralston on the trip to Put-In-Bay, Ohio, where Governor Ralston spoke at the Perry celebration, have returned home. Regarding the trip from Put-In-Bay to Cedar Point on which the boat they were on ran onto a sand bar, Dr. Tillotson said this morning that the newspapers stories were exaggerated and that the party was in little if any danger. Governor Ralston and his party had been invited by the Governor of Michigan, to go with him from Put-In-Bay to Cedar Point. The trip was made in the U. S. S. Don Juan De Austria, a Spanish gun boat, captured by Admiral Dewey in the battle of Manila Bay. The ship was turned over to the state of Michigan by the U. S. Government. The boat draws 15 feet of water, which is more than most of the lake boats draw. During the trip the boat ran onto a sand bar, but was easily gotten off. The boat was not damaged nor were any of the passengers alarmed. Only a short delay was occasioned by the accident.

Osteopathy
Removes the cause and aids Nature to Health
It is not a cure-all, but it adds years to the life and life to the years of those who have tried other methods without success. If you are rheumatic, neuralgic, dyspeptic, paralytic, asthmatic, can't eat, can't sleep, all fagged out without exertion, fear nervous collapse, something is seriously clogging the wheels of life. The longer you try to work while the body machinery is out of adjustment, the more difficult it will be for the
to adjust it and correctly fix what is wrong. That they know how to remove the cause by properly adjusting the structure of the body machinery is evidenced by twelve years of successful practice. Phone 228. Lady attendant. No charge for examination. PREVO BLOCK, GREENCASTLE.
